

To whom it may concern at the FCC,
This letter is in regards to the NAB's attempt to block traffic and weather information from satellite radio.

I am a current XM subscriber who became fed up with the slim selection of local radio in my area (Washington). The music stations offered nothing new and the talk/news arena had grown stale. XM gives me programming I cannot find anywhere between 88 - 108 mHz.

It is patently ridiculous to mandate restrictions on on paid subscription services. The media business needs to remain a "change or die" arena where stagnant programming and thought becomes unpopular and unprofitable.

Please do not consider any ideas of restricting part or all of XM's service.

Thank you!
